WITH WALT WHITMAN IN CAMDEN

By HORACE TRAUBEL
One of Whitman's Literary Executors and for Many Years His Neighbor and Intimate Friend

A Diary Record of Conversations with Many Important Letters and other Manuscripts. Copiously Illustrated with 35 full-page Portraits and Facsimiles. 8vo, cloth, decorative, 500 pp., net, $3.00. By post, $3.20.

The publication of this volume of Mr. Traubel's diary of Walt Whitman's conversations is one of the most important events in the literary history of America, and one which should attract wide-spread interest, not only among Whitman students, but among all classes of readers.

In preparing the diary for publication the chronicler has made no attempt to dress up Whitman or in any way to obtrude his own personality. Everything is informally presented just as it occurred, and the result is a picture of the daily life and thought of Whitman during his last years, when his judgments and his personality were finally matured, such as we have of no other great author, possibly excepting Dr. Johnson.

All of the letters and manuscripts printed in the diary fall naturally into place, having been discussed by Whitman; and the conversations therefore give his estimates and opinions of contemporary men and events. The book is not only fascinating in its intimacy and its wealth of collateral material, but it will prove a revelation to many who have not realized the breadth of Whitman's literary acquaintance nor his acutely keen critical sense.

Among the mss. given by Whitman to Mr. Traubel, most of which have never before been published, appear letters from Tennyson, Lord Houghton, John Addington Symonds, William M. Rossetti, Robert Buchanan, John Morley, Ellen Terry, T. W. Rolleston, Roden Noel, Edmund Gosse, Edward Carpenter, Edward Dowden, Sidney Lanier, Bret Harte, Joaquin Miller, John Hay, Edwin Booth, John Burroughs, William Douglass O'Connor, J. T. Trowbridge, Robert G. Ingersoll, etc.

Carey, Wymond. "No. 101." N. Y., Putnam, 1905. c. 8+378 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

Unpublished ms. despatches now in the Record Office of the British Museum reveal the interesting fact, that there was once a real "No. 101," and that on more than one occasion the British government obtained important French state secrets through this agent, whose identity was never revealed. It is around this bit of history that the present story is built. The time is during the reign of Louis XIV., and the "No. 101" is a beautiful, fascinating woman with a remarkable history and many lovers. She sells her information at an extravagant price and lives in great luxury. The story embraces many adventures and surprises and numerous characters. By the author of "Monsieur Martin."

This now completed work embraces the history of music from the beginning of the fourth to the middle of the nineteenth century, extending its range in certain directions as late as to the death of Verdi. Four volumes have already been published, viz.: The polyphonic period, pt. 1; The seventeenth century; The age of Bach and Handel; and The Viennese period, all written by noted English authorities. Of the additions under notice, "The polyphonic period," pt. 2, by H. E. Wooldridge, Slade Professor of Fine Art, Oxford, considers the various phases of the development of polyphony, continued until the end of the 16th century, and traces the history of the several schools in the Netherlands, England and Italy. "The romantic period," by E. Dannreuther, the friend of Wagner and Liszt, shows how the course of music has gradually changed since Beethoven's day. The romantic opera in Paris, Italian opera, overtures, religious music, songs, etc., are treated and the works of Berlioz, Weber, Verdi, Rossini, Mendelssohn, Wagner and many others are analyzed and criticised. Both volumes contain many pages of musical quotations as illustrations.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 27, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1905.

THE story of the books of the past year has so many features in common with our annual review of several years in the near past, that it is a rather difficult task to find new or unused phrases in relating it. That the year was rich in books, richer perhaps than any of the years that went before, rich, too, in sales and a resulting prosperity, is beyond controversy. Neither wars nor political events colored its output, which was just that of a normal year, increased naturally by our growth as a nation.

With the immense volume of publications responding to the demands of all degrees of intelligence and culture, many ephemeral and valueless books were sent forth, inevitably. It is not, however, by this class of books, even if they are generally in the majority, that our literature must be judged. That it has a sure and growing future full enough of promise to satisfy the most optimistic, the books of 1905 testify.

In the class of history, and also in that of political and social science, the number of new works from leading professors of our universities or from students who had made these subjects the study of a lifetime, is unusually large, and characterized by patient research and broad scholarship. The monographs on government, illustrating our methods in states and cities, are most suggestive and illuminating. Biography, with its inclusion of memoirs and correspondence, has for some years offered a delightful field of mental browsing. The record of 1905 is even more marked than in the past. The many fascinating works from English as well as American writers seem of permanent value. The American, like the Englishman, has always been a globe-trotter. Narratives from both of journeys and expeditions to all parts of the earth offer instructive reading. Numerous gracefully and wittily expressed volumes in the way of literary and dramatic criticism were gathered under Literary Miscellany and Collected Works, which also stood for many new editions of the complete works of the classics of the world, exquisitely made and finely illustrated.

In the matter of making and illustrating books, we give proofs of a decided advance year by year. Our educational works are among the most artistically turned out and the most attractive to the eye of the child of any the world over. The illustrations of the books for children sent out for the Christmas holiday season were of a high degree of merit. It is to be regretted similar praise cannot be bestowed upon the text of the "juveniles." As stories they betrayed an absence of inventiveness and imagination that was remarkable. With the enormous mass of novels that found readers and buyers, the fires of genius seemed nearly extinguished The inspiration and passion that gave our older novelists a niche in the temple of fame were utterly lacking in the majority of them. That they were commonplace in plot and style, best describes them—commonplace indeed to an appalling degree to the unhappy reviewer forced to meet them in their uncounted numbers. Let us not be understood as saying there were no good novels or children's books —there were many most readable and enjoyable—but the "noble book," in the Ruskin sense, was sadly missing.

The popular interests were exemplified in many books on mental science, Christian science or healing, in books on diet and indoor and outdoor exercises, warranted to keep one young and beautiful, on sports of all kinds and the physical side of the outdoor life. The figures of the year are contained in an article that follows this review of "American Book Production of 1905."

Among our most noted dead was John Hay, Secretary of State under three administrations and co-author of the life of Lincoln and a versatile litterateur. Few personalities inspired more love than that of Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the editor of St. Nicholas since its inception in 1873, who, as well as Hezekiah Butterworth, another of the children's favorites, and Sarah C. Woolsey ["Susan Coolidge"], added wholesomely to books for the young. General Lew Wallace, world-famed as the author of "Ben Hur," Henry Harland ["Sidney Luska"], and Judge A. W. Tourgee were lost from the novelists. Edward Atkinson, social and political reformer, and Prof. Arthur Latham Perry are to be mourned. John Bartlett, compiler of "Familiar Quotations," passed away in his eighty-fifth year. Col. S. Adams Drake, historian, is also to be added to the list.

From English sources are reported the death of William Sharp, who, it is now claimed, was the writer of all the work given to the world by "Fiona Macleod;" of George MacDonald, poet and novelist; Guy W. Boothby, novelist, and Lady Florence Dixie, writer, explorer and champion of woman's rights. Jules Verne's prolific pen will no more delight us.

The review that follows aims to point out the leading books of the year—not only the literary successes, but also the popular ones.

FICTION.

Even with the many notable novels to be quoted as part of the literary history of 1905, "The House of Mirth," by Edith Wharton, is in the lead among works by American novelists. Critics have been unanimous in praise of its power and unique style, pronouncing it a second and modern "Vanity Fair." The life of the rich and idle as seen in New York City was depicted by several other writers with stinging satire. Among the most clever of this class is "Our Best Society," published anonymously, but now acknowledged by John D. Barry as his very own. Salient phases of the present, in our politics and finance, in our social and domestic life found illustration in numerous works of fiction; "Miss Bellard's Inspiration," by William Dean Howells, has an "advanced" woman in its heroine; "The Ballingtons," by Mrs. Frances Squire Potter, is the first book of a new writer, and a study of the marriage relation under two different conditions; "The Opal," sent out without an author's name on the title-page, is a keen psychological study, having its scene among Boston society people; "The Orchid" is one of Robert Grant's unflattering pictures of a member of the "smart set"—a beautiful but apparently heartless American girl; "The Memoirs of an American Citizen" is the story of the self-made man, unscrupulous in the making of money quickly, the author being Robert Herrick, and the hero a Chicago pork merchant; the cotton mills of South Carolina, with their poorly-paid, overworked operatives, furnish the scenes and characters of Marie Van Vorst's "Amanda of the Mills." A book that has created considerable talk and made philanthropists think is "The Long Day," the story of a New York working girl, as told by herself; a typical Indiana town forms the background of what is thought to be Booth Tarkington's best novel—"The Conquest of Canaan." No mean power is shown in "The Walking Delegate," a first novel by Leroy Scott, dealing with strikes and unions and "graft;" "The Ultimate Passion" of a bright New Yorker rather interfered with his political advancement, as it is the third woman he loves, who induces him to sacrifice his ambitions to his innate honesty; the story is from Philip Verrill Mighels; "The Deluge," by David Graham Phillips, is a story of "frenzied finance," and Hamlin Garland's "The Tyranny of the Dark" deals with occultism (so-called) and spiritualism, etc. "The Debtor," the most recent novel of Mrs. Mary Eleanor Wilkins Freeman, possesses all her old-time quaint humor and realism. An English girl, ambitious to be a great opera singer, is the central figure in "Fair Margaret," by Francis Marion Crawford. Baroness von Hutten's "Pam" was one of the real successes of the year; she is also to be credited with a second novel, "He and Hecuba," of nearly equal interest. A psychological condition not often discussed in fiction, or indeed outside, of a physician's office, is strongly set forth in "A Dark Lantern," by Elizabeth Robins ("C. E. Raimond"). "The Wood Fire in No. 3," around which gathered the inmates of an old studio building, is rich in romantic reminiscences, from the pen of Francis Hopkinson Smith. The unacknowledged author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress," successfully essayed writing a novel under the title of "The Trident and the Net," depicting scenes and characters of Brittany. Bright, unsensational stories are offered in "Paradise," by Alice Brown, "An Orchard Princess," by Ralph H. Barbour, "At the Sign of the Fox," by "Barbara," the author of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife," now acknowledged to be Mrs. Mabel Osgood Wright, and "The Princess Elopes," by Harold MacGrath.

The automobile was celebrated in the following novels: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Norris Williamson wrote of charming trips by "auto" through France and Italy in "The Princess Passes" and "My Friend the Chauffeur;" Lloyd Osbourne, the stepson of Robert L. Stevenson, comprises under the title "Baby Bullet" a little French automobile, a rollicking story of ninety days' sport in England; "The Black Motor Car," by Harris Burland, is a dashing story of revenge. Two stories of Japan, one by the sister of Marion Crawford, Mrs. Mary Fraser, entitled "A Maid of Japan," and another by Oscar King Davis, "At the Emperor's Wish," give rare insight into Japanese life and customs; "The Staircase of Surprise," by Frances Aymar Matthews, is a story of the Chinese-Japanese war, with a Chinese princess for the heroine. Delightfully simple and romantic are "The Professor's Legacy," by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick, and "The Coming of the Tide," by Margaret Pollock Sherwood, the author of "Daphne." "The Great Mogul" is one of Louis Tracy's thrilling narratives of adventure in an out-of-the-way corner of the globe. A sparkling wit and a rare good humor are characteristics of "Partners of the Tide," by Joseph C. Lincoln; "The Fugitive Blacksmith," by C. D. Stewart; "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," by Anne Warner; "Plain Mary Smith," by H. Wallace Phillips; "The Digressions of Polly," by Helen Rowland; "The Larkins Wedding," by Alice McAlilly and "At the Sign of the Jack O' Lantern," by Myrtle Reed, a quaint and funny old story in which a New York newspaper man and his bride figure. Four stories of the South deal with various periods of its history: "A Daughter of the South" is a romance of the last months of the Civil War, by George Cary Eggleston; "Constance Trescot," Dr. Weir Mitchell's novel, tells a striking story of a woman's revenge and of Southern conditions following the Civil War; "The Colonel's Dream," by Charles Waddell Chesnutt, is laid in the early '90s and has to do with the return of a Southern man who has long lived in the North, to his childhood's home—his dream, to help his people—comes to an abrupt and dramatic ending. Thomas Dixon, Jr's. "The Clansman" is a spectacular vision of the Reconstruction period in the South, by a bitter partisan.

"The House of a Thousand Candles," by Meredith Nicholson, has an ingenious plot, full of mysteries and surprises. A brilliantly told story of the early years of service of Nelson in the English Navy and of Napoleon in the French Army is comprised under "The Two Captains," by Cyrus Townsend Brady. "Patricia," a study of mother love, is by Mrs. Kathleen Mannington Caffyn ("Iota"). "Stork's Nest," by J. B. Ellis, is a study of illiterate country people of the backwoods of Northern Missouri. The author of "The Spenders"—Harry Leon Wilson—in "The Boss of Little Arcady" tells the story of a little village community of the Middle West. "The Wheat Princess," by Jean Webster, has its scene in Italy, although its characters are American. "The Quakeress," by C. Heber Clark ("Max Adeler") has for its subject the peaceful life in central Pennsylvania, at the beginning of the Civil War. "Lords of the Soil," by Lydia A. Jocelyn and Nathan J. Cuffee, is a romance of Indian life among early English settlers on Long Island. "Sir Galahad of New France," by W. H. Johnson, is a sixteenth century story of the new world. A story of parish work in Canada, by the pastor of one of the largest Presbyterian churches, is embraced in Robert E. Knowles's "St. Cuthbert's." Thomas McKean, author of "The Vortex," brings an American couple to Italy and places them under the influence of an unscrupulous Italian priest, who endeavors to convert them to Romanism. Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice's effort of the year was "Sandy;" Edith M. Nicholl's was "The Human Touch." "A Prince to Order" came from Charles Stokes Wayne, and "The Reckoning" from Robert W. Chambers, being the fourth of the series of novels devoted to the history of the old New York frontier in the days of the American war for independence. "The Flight of Georgiana" is a story of love and peril in England in 1746, by Robert Neilson Stephens. "The Secret of Wold Hall," by Evelyn Everett Green, sustains the readers' interest until the very end. "A Tale of the Kloster," by Brother Jabez, a romance of the German Mystics of Cocalico, gives the history of a little community in Pennsylvania, founded in 1728, which developed into a religious and commercial settlement, and set up the third printing press in the colony.

There seems to have been a revival of the American short story during 1905, as there were quite a number of interesting collections recorded. "Visionaries" stands for a volume of short stories, by the well-known critic, James G. Huneker. "The Sa 'Zada Tales" are animal stories related by animals and made readable by W. A. Fraser. "Little Stories of Courtship" is a companion volume to Mrs. M. S. Cutting's "Little Stories of Married Life." Love stories and stories of adventure are embraced in "The Line of Love," by James Branch Cabell; "The Wizard's Daughter," by Mrs. Margaret Collier Graham; "The Bell in the Fog," by Mrs. Gertrude Atherton; "At Close Range," by Francis Hopkinson Smith; "The Second Wooing of Salina Sue," by Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart, and "The Probationer," by Herman Whitaker. Jack London utilizes his experiences as a member of the Fish Patrol in San Francisco Bay in "Tales of the Fish Patrol." Ten thrilling stories of dash and daring by the crew of a hook and ladder company are included in "The Smoke-Eaters," by Harvey J. O'Higgins. Sea stories are to be found in "The Deep Sea's Toll," by James Bennet Connolly. "The Best Policy," by Elliott Flower, is a series of sketches in which the chief figure is a life insurance agent. Then further to be mentioned were "The Mountain of Fears," by Henry Cottrell Rowland, and "Out of Bondage and Other Stories," by Rowland E. Robinson, taking one into the Green Mountain country of New England.

The early part of the year witnessed the issue in book-form in this country of "The Marriage of William Ashe," one of Mrs. Humphry Ward's most charming productions based on the life of Lady Caroline Lamb. This novel and "The Gambler," by Katherine Cecil Thurston, were probably the most notable novels from English writers copyrighted on this side of the water. Mrs Thurston's "Gambler," while not exciting curiosity as did "The Masquerader," is a delightful story with a delightful heroine. A popular English actress, with a husband somewhere in the background, is the central figure of "A Servant of the Public," by "Anthony Hope." Northern India and afterward England are the settings of "Rose of the World." one of the carefully worked out narratives of Agnes and Egerton Castle, rich in love and mysteries. Italian art and romance share the attention equally in "The Flute of Pan," by "John Oliver Hobbes," otherwise Mrs. Mary Craigie. A charming little adventure is the subject of "The Princess Priscilla's Fortnight," by the author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden." Although sad and gloomy, "The Secret Woman" is one of the strongest of Eden Phillpotts' stories of the Dartmoor country of Western England. In "The Fool Errant," by Maurice Hewlett, we have a quaintly unconventional novel of eighteenth century Italy. "The Storm of London," even more unconventional than the former work, is built up on the underlying idea of "Sartor Resartus," and did not fail to find readers, even while it shocked. It was sent out under a pseudonym—"F. Dickberry"—the author's name, however, being acknowledged now to be Madame de Bury. Curiosities of literature are named with Algernon C. Swinburne's "Love's Cross Currents" and George Bernard Shaw's "The Irrational Knot," both bantlings of these famous writers' youth. The romantic highwayman is pictured in "Stingaree," one of Ernest Hornung's stories of early Australian days. He also wrote "A Thief in the Night," further adventures of A. J. Raffles, cricketer and cracksman. Murder and theft are also made interesting in three of Fergus Hume's stories, "The Crimson Cryptogram," "The Mandarin's Fan," and "The Secret Passage"—a clever detective in each instance being the unraveller of the mystery. "The Garden of Allah," by Robert Hichens, tells the love story of a Catholic monk and reaches its dramatic climax in the Desert of Sahara. W. E. Norris, who will never cease to appeal to the clever and intelligent, through his wit and humor, gave us "Barham of Beltana," with its scene in Tasmania, and "An Embarrassing Orphan." Most readable novels are comprised in "The Image in the Sand," by E. F. Benson; "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne," by W. J. Locke; "The Scarlet Pimpernel," by Baroness Orczy, a romance of the French Revolution; "The Celestial Surgeon," by F. F. Montrésor; "The Harvest of the Sea,' by Wilfrid T. Grenfell, describing graphically the lives of deep sea fishermen; S. Rutherford Crockett's two stories, "The Cherry Ribband" and "May Margaret," both set in a framework of Scotch history, one of the 17th century and the other of the 15th century. "Two Moods of a Man." by Horace Gordon Hutchinson, is a strange psychological study. "Duncan Polite," by Marian Keith, plays in the great lumber region of Canada; Richard Bagot's "The Passport," in a little Italian hill-village; Mrs. Blundell's "Wild Wheat" is a Dorsetshire story.

A few English volumes of short stories may be mentioned with Eden Phillpotts' "Knock at a Venture," studies of his much-loved Dartmoor; "Twelve Stories and a Dream," characteristically weird, from the pen of Herbert G. Wells; Robert Hichens' "The Black Spaniel, and Other Stories;" "Sons o' Men," by G. B. Lancaster, short tales of New Zealand sheep shearers and cattle men, and "Maarten Maartens'" stories of Dutch peasant life, entitled "My Poor Relations."

Rosegger's "I. N. R. I.: a Prisoner's Story of the Cross," is a fervent history of Christ, purporting to be written by a young German socialist, condemned to death. It is taken from the German, the book having been one of the literary sensations in Germany. "Jörn Uhl," also from the German, by Gustav Frenssen, is the soul history of a peasant. From the Italian comes "After the Divorce," by Grazia Deledda, with its scene in Sardinia; it is exciting and dramatic.

BIOGRAPHY, MEMOIRS, CORRESPONDENCE.

The "Autobiography of Andrew Dickson White" traces the career of one of our most prominent public men in many fields of activity. As educator, diplomat, and author, President White, of Cornell, was brought in contact with many great men, the world over. The two thick volumes containing his story are rich in unusual experiences and graphic character sketches. They represent one of the leading American works of 1905 of this class. A fresh effort in biography, having for its subject "James Russell Lowell, his life and work," brings before us out of the past the attractive personality of one of the most gifted of Americans. Lowell is allowed to tell his own story as far as possible in brief extracts from letters, journals and private note books, gathered by this biographer, Ferris Greenslet, associate editor of the Atlantic Monthly. More chapters in the life of Mrs. Mary King Waddington are offered in "Italian Letters of a Diplomat's Wife, January-May, 1880, Feb.-April, 1904," abounding in pen pictures from an exceptionally gifted woman, living an exceptional career. "Memoirs of Dr. Thomas W. Evans," gives details of events in the second French Empire, of which the Empress Eúgénie was heroine, known only to Dr. Evans, the celebrated American dentist, resident in Paris for many years. "Edwin McMasters Stanton, Lincoln's great War Secretary," and the dominating spirit of his cabinet during our Civil War, has been studied anew by Frank Abial Flower. "Theodore Thomas, a musical autobiography," edited after the writer's death by George P. Upton, tells of the great American conductor's eventful career, and the great singers and musicians he met. "The Memoirs of Rose Eytinge" recalls picturesque figures of the stage famous during the past fifty years. One of our most distinguished literary men of the last century — Bayard Taylor — has many interesting facts recalled relative to himself and his work in a work entitled "On Two Continents," written by Mrs. Taylor and his daughter. Agnes Repplier is most engaging in describing her childhood days at a French-American convent school under the title "In Our Convent Days." A new life of "Sidney Lanier," by Edwin Mims, brings back to memory the sad story of a much-admired man of letters. "The Abolitionists" of our anti-slavery period were described and discussed by J. F. Hume.

An architect, naturalist, and traveller in the United States, from 1760 to 1820, and a personal friend of George Washington, is introduced through "The Journal of Latrobe." Mary F. Sandars is the author of "Honoré de Balzac, his life and writings," a work based upon new material and fresh researches. "A Southern Girl in '61," by Mrs. D. Giraud Wright (formerly Miss Louise Wigfall), and "A Diary from Dixie," by Mrs. Mary Boykin Chestnut, are two delightfully fresh and unstudied records of the South in its Confederate days.

The American Statesmen, 2d Series, introductory volume was a study of "James Gillespie Blaine," by Edward Stanwood. To the American Crisis Biographies were added "Thomas H. Benton," by Joseph H. Rogers; "William T. Sherman," by Edward Robins, and "David G. Farragut," by J. Randolph Spears; to Heroes of the Reformation Series, "John Knox," by Dr. Henry Cowan, and "Balthasar Hübmaïer," by Professor Henry Clay Vedder; to Heroes of the Nations Series, "Constantine the Great," by John B. Firth. The first volume of a series called French Men of Letters, aiming to do for French literature what the English Men of Letters did for English authors, is the work of Professor Dowden, and is devoted to "Michel de Montaigne."

"Renascence Portraits," by Dr. Paul Van Dyke, are studies of three typical characters who were living at the same time in Germany, England and Italy; these men were the German Emperor Maxmilian I., the English chief minister, Thomas Cromwell, and the Venetian litterateur, Pietro Aretino. William Cleaver Wilkinson includes in "Modern Masters of Pulpit Discourse" many of the great American pulpit orators. "Daughters of the Puritans" contains brief biographies of celebrated American women, written by Seth Curtis Beach. "The Loves of Great Composers," by Gustav Kobbé, tells of the romances in the lives of Wagner, Liszt, Mozart, and others. "Beethoven" is a characteristic study, by George Alexander Fischer.

For a new and charming "Life of Charles Lamb" (2 v.), we are indebted to English sources. It is claimed by its author, E. V. Lucas, to be the most complete yet written, as it includes all new information brought to light since Talfourd's "Final Memorials." Also from the other side comes "Mrs. Brookfield and Her Circle," letters written to Mr. William Henry Brookfield, the English clergyman and his wife, by their friends, who included Thackeray, Tennyson, Carlyle, and others equally brilliant and famous. "The Life of Johannes Brahms," the great composer, had a sympathetic biographer in Florence May. "Kate Greenaway," identified so closely with English art, had her biography written by Marion H. Spielmann and G. S. Layard. William Henry Wilkins's "Mrs. Fitzherbert and George IV.," which is a sifting and a laying to rest of the scandals that for many years clung to the English King and a prominent society lady, is as fascinating as a novel. English men of note, who made volumes out of the events of their remarkable careers, are represented by Major Arthur G. F. Griffiths's "Fifty Years of Public Service." Sir Horace Rumbold's "Final Recollections of a Diplomatist," Alfred Russel Wallace's "My Life, a Record of Events and Opinions," and "The Life of Granville George Leveson Gower, Second Earl Granville, R. G. 1815-1891" (2 v.). The English Men of Letters Series includes our own "William Cullen Bryant," whose portrait has been painted by W. A. Bradley; Modern English Writers Series included in its ranks "Robert Browning," by C. Harold Herford; Literary Lives Series had added to it "Ernest Renan," by Dr. W Barry; "Coventry Patmore," by Edmund W. Gosse, and "Charlotte Brontë and her Sisters," by Clement King Shorter.

The first volume of "The Life of Goethe," to be extended to three volumes, was taken from the German of Albert Bielschowsky, by W. A. Cooper. This is to be the authoritative life of the great German poet. "Letters of Henrik Ibsen" is the only thing in the way of an autobiography of the Norwegian dramatist we are likely to receive. "Richard Wagner to Mathilde Wesendonck" is a collection of letters that passed between the two persons mentioned in the title, evidences of a very tender friendship existing between Wagner and the woman who inspired his "Tristan and Isolde." Gustav Kobbé made a little book based on these letters, which he named "Wagner and his Isolde;" "Beethoven the Man and the Artist," and "Mozart the Man and the Artist," both compilations from the writings of these two great composers, by Friedrich Kerst, reveal their opinions on many subjects. "The Romance of Victor Hugo and Juliette Drouet," taken from the French is another collection of "human documents" bearing testimony to a romance of fifty years standing, of which the world knew little. Henri de Noussanne offers a fresh pen portrait of William II. of Germany in "The Kaiser as he is, or the Real William II.," translated into English by Walter Littlefield.

HISTORY.

A new and comprehensive history of "The United States," by William Estabrook Chancellor and Fletcher Willis Hewes, begun in 1904, has the second volume issued during the past year, its subject being "Colonial Union, 1698-1774, the record of the development of the several English colonies and the rise of the spirit of revolution;" eight more volumes are needed to complete the work. Of equal importance with the foregoing is "The American Nation," edited by Albert Bushnell Hart, a recent contribution to American history, taken from the original sources by associate scholars. There will be twenty-seven volumes in all, of which ten have been published. George Cary Eggleston, under the general title of "Little History of Colonial Life Series, sent out volumes on "Our First Century" and "Life in the Eighteenth Century." Our Civil War is more and more studied by thinkers and writers; recent contributions to the subject are "The Brothers' War," by J. C. Reed, a Southerner who aims to be dispassionate. General Henry E. Tremain's "Two Days of War," the author's recollections of Gettysburg; Michael Fitch's "Echoes of the Civil War as I Hear Them;" "A History of the Civil War," compiled by two Englishmen—W. B. Wood and J. E. Edmonds—and "The Crisis of the Confederacy," a history of Gettysburg and the Wilderness, also the work of an Englishman—Cecil Battine. Further researches into American history are exemplified through "The Conquest of the Southwest," by Cyrus Townsend Brady, a volume of Expansion of the Republic Series; "Historic Illinois," the romance of the earlier days by Randall Parrish, author of "When Wilderness was King," and other novels; and "Iowa," the first free State in the Louisiana purchase, by William Salter. The new volumes in the American Commonwealths Series are "Rhode Island," a study in separation, by Irving Berdine Richman; "Indiana," a redemption from slavery, by Jacob Platt Dunn, Jr., in a new enlarged edition, and "Louisiana," a record of expansion, by Albert Phelps. More recent history is illustrated in "Cuba and the Intervention," by Albert Gardner Robinson. Twelve volumes were added during 1905 to Reuben Gold Thwaites's "Early Western Travels," while Blair and Robertson's "Philippine Islands" had also twelve new volumes added to the series. These works are half way between history and description.

"Sea Power in its Relations to the War of 1812" (2 v.) concludes the series of "The Influence of Sea Power upon History," as originally planned by Captain Mahan. "Our Navy and the Barbary Corsairs" is another chapter of the same subject by Gardner W. Allen. "The England and Holland of the Pilgrims," by the late Dr. Henry Martyn Dexter and his son Monton, is the story of the Pilgrim movement resulting in the Plymouth Colony. "The Spanish Settlements Within the Present Limits of the United States," by Woodbury Lowery, continues the author's previous volume on Florida to a later period (1562-1574). Dr. Sinclair's "The Aftermath of Slavery" is a study of the condition and environment of the American negro.

France found two students of its past among our own writers—"Versailles and the Court under Louis XIV.," is a carefully considered work by James Eugene Farmer, master of history and English literature at St. Paul's School, Concord., N. H., and "Mirabeau and the French Revolution," by Charles Franklin Warwick. Two histories of Italy were recorded from American pens, namely, "A Short History of Italy," by Henry Dwight Sedgwick, and "Italy, her People and their Story," by Mrs. Augusta Hale Gifford. Young Japan," by James A. B. Scherer, is a history of Japan, its people, institutions and customs, with a detailed account of their educational development. "Russia and its Crisis," by Paul Milyoukov, and "Russia from Within," by Alexander Ular, reflect the causes of the present unfortunate conditions in the Czar's Empire. "A History of Egypt from the Earliest Times to the Persian Conquest." by James H. Breasted, is based entirely on recent original research. The fourth volume was given of Poultney Bigelow's "History of the German Struggle for Liberty," and Henry Wellington Wack, a New York lawyer, told of the social, political and economic aspects of the Belgian system of government in Central Africa in "The Story of the Congo Free State."

The English historians were as industrious as our own. A most important work was begun under the editorship of William Hunt and Reginald L. Poole—"The Political History of England." The volumes are to be by different authors, although forming together a complete history. So far three volumes have been published, one being by Prof. George Burton Adams, of Yale University. "England Under the Tudors," by Arthur D. Innes, while the 4th volume of "A History of England," edited by C. W. C. Oman, is really the first volume so far issued of the work to be completed in six volumes. Like the former work, the volumes will have different editions. The title of Martin Hume's work, "The Wives of Henry the Eighth and the parts they played in history," explains itself. With volumes four and five was concluded Justin McCarthy's "A History of Our Own Times, from the Diamond Jubilee, 1897, to the Accession of King Edward VII." "King Leopold II., His Rule in Belgium and the Congo," is a handsomely illustrated work by John DeCourcy MacDonnell. The present condition of the Balkans and of European responsibilities is discussed by various writers in a volume of which Luigi Villari is editor. "The Burden of the Balkans" is a record of Miss Edith Durham's sixth visit to the Balkan Peninsula. "Japan, the Eastern Wonderland," is descriptive, being by D. C. Angus; "The Yellow War" consists of sketches —human or personal—of the Russo-Japanese War. "Port Arthur," by Frederic Villiers, the English war correspondent, is a narrative of three months with the besiegers. J. Hutton Balfour Browne's "South Africa" is a glance at current conditions and politics. "The East African Protectorate" is described by Sir Charles Eliot. "The Unveiling of Lhasa," by Edmund Candler, is an account of the expedition sent by England in 1903 under Colonel Younghusband to Tibet. A new enlarged and revised edition of Sir Donald Mackenzie Wallace's "Russia" was warmly welcomed, as it contained the results of the author's six years' recent residence in Russia. V. 2 of Gabriel Hanotaux's "Contemporary France" was brought out, and E. S. Shuckburgh's "Augustus," the life and times of the founder of the Roman Empire.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

William Dean Howells' impressions of London, affording fresh views of time-worn places, are sent out under the clever title, "London Films." A topographical description of ancient London, by Henry Thew Stephenson may be asked for as "Shakespeare's London." An historical and pictorial account of the Franciscan Missions—"In and Out of the Old Missions of California"—is rich in new information relative to a most interesting subject. "From the West to the West Across the Plains to Oregon," is the record of a journey from Chicago to Oregon taken fifty years ago, the author being Abigail Scott Duniway. These are by American authors, as are "The Spirit of the Mountains," in which Mrs. Emma B. Miles describes the hardy inhabitants of the Tennessee Mountains; "The Lure of the Labrador Wild," the story of the exploring expedition conducted by Leonidas Hubbard, Jr., by Dillon Wallace; "In the Heart of the Canadian Rockies," by James Outram; "A Commercial Traveller in South America," by Frank Wiborg, an American business man; and "Alaska and the Klondike," by J. Scudder McLain.

How the Frenchman or woman seeks and finds enjoyment is cleverly sketched with pen and pencil in "Parisians Out of Doors," by Frank Berkeley Smith. "Rambles in Normandy" and "Rambles in Brittany," two accounts of wanderings in France by Francis Miltoun (Mr. M. F. Mansfield), illustrated by Blanche McManus (Mrs. Mansfield), were among the choicest of holiday books. Part of Austria-Hungary is delineated in "The Fair Land Tyrol," by W. D. McCracken. Mrs. E. W. Champney wrote of "Romance of the French Abbeys," James Douglas of "Old France in the New World"—that is Quebec in the 17th century—and Charles Gibson of characteristic spots of rural France in "Among French Inns."

It may be remembered that Katharine A. Carl, an American portrait painter, received an order while visiting Shanghai, in 1903, to paint the portrait of the Empress Dowager. Her unique experience, which took her to Pekin and behind the scenes, as it were, of Chinese royalty, she has made into a book finely illustrated by herself, known as "With the Empress Dowager." Colonel Denby, once United States minister to China, contributed two volumes, "China and her Peoples," touching upon almost everything one would want to know about these strange people. "Chinese Life in Town and Country," adapted from the French of Emile Bard, by H. Twitchell, is a timely volume of Our Asiatic Neighbours, which had also added to it in the past year "Australian Life in Town and Country," by E. C. Buley, and "Philippine Life in Town and Country," by James A. LeRoy. "The Philippine Islands," by Fred Washington Atkinson, is a most valuable work by the first General Superintendent of Education for the Philippines.

Venice in "Salve Venetia" (2 v.) found a most sympathetic historian in Francis Marion Crawford; "Venice as Seen and Described by Famous Writers" is one of Esther Singleton's delightful compilations; in "Italian Backgrounds" Mrs. Edith Wharton sketched the beautiful scenery of picturesque spots of Northern Italy. Two war correspondents are represented by John Fox., Jr., in "Following the Sun-Flag," a vain pursuit through Manchuria, and Richard Barry's "Port Arthur." A novel interpretation of the significance of the Russia-Japanese War is offered in "The White Peril in the Far East," by the Rev. Sidney Lewis Gulick; of kindred interest are the following: "Twenty-one Years in India," by Dr. J. L. Humphrey; "In the Land of the Gods" (Japan), by Alice Mabel Bacon; "Far Eastern Impressions—Japan, Korea, China," by Ernest F. G. Hatch; "The Jordan Valley and Petra," by W. Libbey and Dr. F. E. Hoskins; "Tibet and Turkestan," by Oscar Terry Crosby; and "Jungle Trails and Jungle People," by Caspar Whitney, being thrilling stories of adventure in hunting big game in the Far East.

Two different narratives from wholly different points of view, one dealing with scientific results, the other with simple details of every-day life are comprised in "The Voyage of the Discovery," by Captain Robert F. Scott, and "Two Years in the Antarctic," by Lieut. A. B. Armitage, both having for subject the British National Antarctic Expedition of 1901-02. Other English works worthy of note were Alfred Stead's "Great Japan," "John Chinaman at Home," by Rev. E. J. Hardy, the well-known author of "How to be Happy Though Married;" "A Levantine Log-Book," by Jerome Hart; "Pictures in Umbria," by Mrs. Katharine S. Macquoid; "The Far East," by Archibald Little; "Tibet and Nepal," painted and described by A. H. Savage Landor, and "The Opening of Tibet," by Perceval Landon. "Dorset Dear" is a collection of charming idylls of English country life, by "M. E. Francis." "The Wild Irishman" received most amusing treatment at the hands of T. W. H. Crosland. "The Other Side of the Lantern" is an account of a commonplace tour around the world, by Sir F. Treves. "Home Life in France" is graphically depicted by Matilda Betham-Edwards. Taken from the French were: "In the Land of the Strenuous Life," impressions of the Abbé Klein of life in the United States; sketches of life in England and other countries are gathered under the title of "Through Isle and Empire," by Vicomte R. D. Humières. Madame Loyson, wife of the great French preacher, wrote "To Jerusalem Through the Lands of Islam." "With Flash-Light and Rifle" is a translation from the German of C. G. Schillings' noted work on hunting by night in African lands, and is specially remarkable for the pictures of lions, tigers, etc., photographed by night by a special process.

LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY.

Charming descriptive papers are to be found within the covers of "English Hours," gathered from various periodicals in which they appeared during the past thirty years. They offer Mr. Henry James's earliest impressions of England, their attractiveness being enhanced by Joseph Pennell's graceful illustrations. Mr. James's "The Question of Our Speech—The Lesson of Balzac" are the two lectures delivered by him last spring when in this country. Elisabeth Luther Cary made a study of "The Novels of Henry James" a fine example of careful work and thorough knowledge of the subject. Other American essayists contributed permanent volumes to literature. "Iconoclasts" is a series of critical papers on modern dramatists of the Ibsen school, by the much-admired dramatic critic, James Gibbons Huneker. Interesting reminiscences of players, artists and writers are cleverly woven together in "Talks in a Library with Laurence Hutton." Bliss Carman wrote of "The Poetry of Life" in a number of prose essays; Thomas Dixon, Jr., on "The Life Worth Living;" Andrew Macphail sent out "Essays in Puritanism," and F. Rowland Marvin gathered together many short essays under the title of "The Companionship of Books." There was a third series of Paul Elmer More's "Shelburne Essays," and a new revised edition of Richardson's very popular "Choice of Books." Henry Jackson Van Dyke's "Essays in Application" are practical and helpful. "The Pardoner's Wallet" treats of many aspects of human nature, in a not too critical manner. S. McChord Crothers is the author. Humorous sketches of journalistic life—"Editorial Wild Oats"—fill a small volume, by S. L. Clemens ("Mark Twain"). "Casual Essays of The Sun" are examples of the best editorial writing of a newspaper long celebrated for its wit and humor. "A Publisher's Confession," published anonymously, gave many facts and theories relating to the commercial side of publishing and bookselling. It did not meet with the careful attention it should have found until it had been most cleverly used as text for an able article in the Atlantic by Henry Holt, always a thoughtful, trenchant writer, and one of the most representative of American publishers.

Useful works of reference are comprised in the second volume (covering 1730-1750) of Charles Evans's exhaustive "American Bibliography;" "A Bibliography of Works in English on Playing Cards and Gaming," compiled by F. Jessel; "A Bibliography of Nathaniel Hawthorne," by Nina E. Browne, and "Bibliography of the Writings of Alfred Lord Tennyson," edited by J. C. Thomson. Three new volumes almost brought to completion the comprehensive "Jewish Encyclopædia," edited by Isidore Singer and other scholars and specialists. The five-yearly instalment of "The American Catalogue" appeared in two volumes, the first giving a short-title cumulated index of five years books, and the second the complete titles of the books with descriptive notices as they originally appeared in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY "Weekly Record."

Andrew Lang's "Adventures Among Books," which includes critical estimates of English and American authors takes a high place among English literary efforts, as does Edmund Gosse's "French Profiles," appreciation of modern French authors. "Heretics," by Gilbert Keith Chesterton, refers to certain English writers, unorthodox in a literary conception. "In the Name of the Bodleian and other Essays" takes up many different subjects in Augustine Birrell's delightful manner. "The Makers of English Fiction" has for its subjects leading English novelists, critically considered by W. James Dawson. Other volumes to be noted are "The New Rambler," by Sir Lewis Morris; "Facts and Ideas," short studies of life and literature, by Philip Gibbs; "Epigrams and Aphorisms," a selection of brilliant thoughts from fourteen of Oscar Wilde's best known writings, and a witty little book from Bernard Shaw—"On Going to Church;" "My Appeal to America" is the Rev. Charles Wagner's first address to an American audience. "Russian Literature During the Nineteenth Century" is a series of eight lectures by Kropotkin given at the Lowell Institute in Boston.

POETRY AND THE DRAMA.

Out of the many volumes of poetry published during the past year we can select only a few for mention. A very handsome book was sent out of the "Collected Sonnets of Lloyd Mifflin," many being unpublished hitherto, the others bearing evidence of revision by the late author. "In the Heights" is Richard Watson Gilder's eighth volume of poems, and contains nearly all he has written since the publication in 1901 of his "Poems and Inscriptions." Racy, witty verses on American conditions are embraced in "At the Sign of the Dollar," by Wallace Admah Irwin, the editor of The Overland Monthly. "The Shoes That Danced and other Poems," by Anna Hempstead Branch, the talented author of "The Heart of the Road" are graceful and refined in sentiment. Paul Laurence Dunbar's name stands on the title page of two volumes —"Lyrics of Sunshine and Shadow" and "Howdy, Honey, Howdy." The first are poems that appeared in various periodicals during the past five years; the second a collection of his dialect poems, made into a very beautiful holiday volume. The above come from American pens. Sherwin Cody, also an American, made an interesting compilation under the name "A Selection from the Great English Poets," which includes several American poets.

Other collections that found favor were "The Poems of William Watson" (2 v.), representing the English poet's best work up to date; "Select Poems of Robert Browning," arranged in chronological order; "The English Works of George Herbert," a fine work in three volumes ably edited by George Herbert Palmer, who studies the writings in relation to Herbert's life and gives what will probably always be the authoritative text of the poems; and "Odes from the Divan of Hafiz," freely rendered from literal translations, by Richard Le Gallienne.

ART WORKS AND WORKS ON ART.

The holiday season of 1905 was marked more particularly by editions de luxe of works that have taken a permanent place in American literature, rather than by art works of originality. "Our Neighbors," the last of Charles Dana Gibson's characteristic sketches we shall probably see for some years, was invested with a special interest. "Drawings by Howard Chandler Christy," and "Drawings by A. B. Frost" are characteristic collections by two of our most distinguished illustrators. "The Mysterious Stranger and other Cartoons," by John Tinney McCutcheon, and "A Corner in Women and other Follies" also come under the head of original work. Maud Howe's "Two in Italy" was illustrated from original drawings, by John Elliott.

The group that follows—all holiday volumes —that received warm appreciation were richly illustrated from photographs: "The Florence of Landor," by Lilian Whiting; "Old Provence" (2 v.), by Theodore Andrea Cook; "Art Lovers' Treasury," by Mrs. Carrie Thompson Lowell; "Paintings of the Louvre, Italian and Spanish," Arthur Mahler and others; "The Art of the Venice Academy," by Mary Knight Potter, and "The Art of the National Gallery," by Julie de Wolf Addison, both contributions to the Art Galleries of Europe Series; "The Cathedrals of Northern Spain," by Charles Rudy, and "The Cathedrals and Churches of the Rhine," by Francis Miltoun, additions to the Cathedral Series. "Great Portraits as Seen and Described by Great Writers," edited by Esther Singleton, is a delightful series of reproductions of portraits by the old masters. Illustrated holiday editions were brought out of "Her Letter," by Bret Harte; Holmes's "One-Hoss Shay;" John Luther Long's "Miss Cherry Blossom of Tokyo;" Kipling's "The Seven Seas;" and Gilbert Parker's "The Seats of the Mighty." The increasing interest in Japanese art is manifested in many new books dedicated to various branches of the subject. Among the more notable are "Impressions of Japanese Architecture and the Allied Arts," by Ralph Adams Cram; "Arts and Crafts of Old Japan," by Stewart Dick, and "Impressions of Ukiyoze," the school of the Japanese Colour print artists, by Dora Amsden. Russell Sturgis's art handbooks are invaluable to students, as are indeed all his writings; specially appealing to the seeker after knowledge is his "The Appreciation of Pictures," "The Interdependence of the Arts of Design," and "A Study of the Artists' Way of Working in the Various Handicrafts and Arts of Design." Irene Weir in "The Greek Painters' Art" brings young students in touch with the Greek painters of old in a simple and direct manner. Charles Henry Caffin shows "How to Study Pictures" by means of a series of comparisons of paintings and painters from Cimabue to Monet. "The History of American Painting," by S. Isham, is the initial volume of an important history of American art, edited by J. C. Van Dyke. Domestic art in its practical as well as artistic side is studied in Alice M. Kellogg's "Home Furnishings;" Arthur Hayden's "Chats on Old Furniture," and in "Old Pewter, Brass, Copper, and Sheffield Plate," by N. Hudson Moore. Musical art found representation in "The Study of the History of Music," by Edward Dickinson and "The Art of the Musician," by Henry Granger Hanchett.

The Connoisseurs' Library, coming from the other side, had a volume added to it on "Ivories," by Alfred Maskell, especially devoted to ivory sculpture. The Newnes' Art Library was enriched by a work on "Puvis de Chavannes," by Arsène Alexandre, one on "Dante Gabriel Rossetti," by Ernest Radford, and another on "The Later Work of Titian;" a moderate-priced edition was published of "Sir Joshua Reynolds," by Sir Walter Armstrong, the highest living authority on Reynolds. V. 1 of F. M. Simpson's "History of Architectural Development," and "Political Caricatures, 1904," by Francis Carruthers Gould, were also issued.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

An unusual number of works on law and government relative to our cities, states and territories of very great value to students and readers fall under this heading. With but few exceptions they come from American pens. The American State Series claims first attention. It had for general editor W. W. Willoughby, and gathered into its embrace four thoughtful monographs during the year. They are "City Government in the United States," by Frank J. Goodnow; "Party Organization and Machinery," by Jesse Macy; "The American Judiciary," by Simeon E. Baldwin, and "Territories and Dependencies of the United States," by W. Franklin Willoughby. Of no less importance is the American Citizen Series, edited by Albert Bushnell Hart, to which we note as additions, "Constitutional Law in the United States," prepared by Emlin McClain, for non-professional students, and "Principles of economics," with special reference to American conditions, by Prof. Seligman, of Columbia University. Also to be quoted here is Professor Alexander Johnston's "American Political History 1763-1876," of which part first was issued; "American Diplomacy," its spirit and achievements, by John Bassett Moore, professor of International law and diplomacy in Columbia University; volume 1 of David Jayne Hill's "History of Diplomacy in the International Development of Europe;" "Our Philippine Problems," by Professor H. Parker Willis, (of Washington and Lee University,) made from material gathered in the Philippines in 1904; Frank Johnson Goodnow's "Principles of the Administrative Law of the United States," and "Social Theories and Social Facts," in Questions of the Day Series, by W. Morton Grinnell. Alleyne Ireland's "The Far Eastern Tropics" is a group of illuminating studies in the administration of tropical dependencies belonging to various nations. "The Menace of Privilege," by Henry George, Jr., is a study of the dangers to the republic from the existence of a favored class; "Advanced Civics," by S. Eagle Forman, presents the spirit, the form and the functions of the American government. A recent issue of the Harvard Historical studies is "The Civil Service and the Patronage," by Carl Russell Fish. "The City the Hope of Democracy," an economic interpretation of the city, is by F. Clemson Howe. "Money Inflation in the United States," a study in social pathology, comes from Professor Wildman of the University of Missouri. Nearly related problems to the above found in our social conditions are studied in "The Russian Jew in the United States," papers edited by C. S. Bernheimer; "The Jewish Spectre," by George H. Warner; "The Italian in America," by Eliot Lord and others; "The Indian Dispossessed," by Seth K. Humphrey; "The Liquor Problem," by John S. Billings and others; "The Industrial Problem," by Dr. Lyman Abbott; "Marriage and Divorce," by Felix Adler, and "Divorce and Remarriage," by Will Brazier Osman. An American, Alvan Francis Sanborn, carefully investigated the revolutionary elements in the various classes of Russian society, the results being embraced in "Paris and the Social Revolution." Socialistic principles are embodied in Jack London's "War of the Classes."

Books for young men entering business life are two works by Orison Swett Marden—"Choosing a Career," and "The Making of a Man." "The Young Man and the World," by Albert J. Beveridge also belongs to this category. "The Life Insurance Company," by W. Alexander in Appleton's Business Series, is rich in facts of general interest.

In the Story of the Nations Series is L. Cecil Jane's "The Coming of Parliament," England, from 1350-1660, by an English author; "The Queen's Poor," life as they find it in town and country, as related by a district nurse—M. Loane. "Model Factories and Villages" describes ideal conditions of labor and housing in various countries, by Budgett Meakin. The anonymous author of "Calmire," published in 1892, collected his views on the labor question, and related questions in "Sturmsee," built upon a thread of a story.

RELIGION AND SCIENCE.

The numerous well-known lecture courses on American foundations were the source of many volumes of religious literature. The subject of the Bohlen Lecture for 1903 was "The Temporary and the Permanent in New Testament Revelation," by Dr. Harry Peirce Nichols; of the Lyman Beecher Lecture at Yale University, 1904, "Jesus Christ and the Christian Character," by Prof. Francis Greenwood Peabody; of the Morse Lectures, 1904, "The Criticism of the Fourth Gospel," by Dr. W. Sanday; of the Barrows Lectures, 1902-03, "Christian Belief Interpreted by Christian Experience," by Prof. Charles Cuthbert Hall; and of the L. P. Stone Lectures for 1902-1903, "The Prophets and the Promise," by Dr. Willis Judson Beecher. "The Religion of the Ancient Egyptians," by Georg Steindorff belongs to American Lectures on the History of Religions, 5th series 1904, "The Christian Doctrine of Salvation," by Prof. George Baker Stevens, is included in the International Theological Library.

Rev. Minot Judson Savage discussed "Life's Dark Problems," asking the question, "Is this a good world?;" Rev. W. Rogers Richards's "God's Choice of Men;" Charles Maish Mead, "Irenic Theology;" Bishop J. L. Spalding, "Religion and Art;" Henry Wood, "Life More Abundant;" M. Louise Greene, "The Development of Religious Liberty in Connecticut;" Dr. E. C. Dargan gave "A History of Preaching," from the Apostolic fathers to the great reformers. "The Church of Christ," by "a layman," presents Christianity as an original or new religion adapted to all mankind; "The Inward Light" is a series of essays on the Holy Spirit, by Dr. Amory Howe Bradford; "The Christian Ministry" is a characteristic volume, by Dr. Lyman Abbott, addressed to preachers who complain of small audiences. Two interesting works for students are "The Trial of Jesus," by a famous Italian criminal lawyer, Giovanni Rosadi, and "The Lynching of Jesus," by E. T. Wellford, an American, who reviews the legal aspects of the trial of Jesus. "A Peculiar People, the Doukhobors," had their real character and motives set forth by Aylmer Maude. A historical monograph betraying much thought and a strict impartiality is "The Valerian Persecution," by Dr. P. J. Healy.

Volumes of sermons constitute the bulk of the literature of this class received from English writers. Translated from the French was a collection of sermons—"The Gospel of Life," by Charles Wagner; "The Reconstruction of Religious Belief," by W. Hurrell Mallock, is the latest effort of one of the most intellectual of English writers.

"The Wonders of Life," by Ernest Haeckel, is a supplementary volume to "The Riddle of the Universe." "Life and Matter," a criticism of the last named, by Sir Oliver Lodge, recommends Haeckel's work only to advanced students of logical minds. Professor August Weismann's lectures delivered in the University of Freiburg are contained in "The Evolution Theory."

AMERICAN BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1905.

THERE were recorded by THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in 1905, through the "Weekly Record of New Publications," 8112 books. The new editions of standard works are included in this total, but few of the cheap paper series, mostly re-issues of old books. The omission of cheap series makes the count seem less than in 1904, but actually there were more books published than in any previous year, our table showing that we recorded 7514 new books against 6971 of 1904, and 598 new editions. The two tables that follow, each dividing the year's output into twenty classes, are strikingly alike, the figures in many cases differing so slightly as scarcely worthy of mention. Table no. 1, contrasting the books of 1904 and 1905, gives Fiction the lead again. Literature and Collected Works is second in the list, taking a step above Theology and Religion. Poetry and the Drama, Law and Juvenile, are all fuller than in previous years. Little change is to be noted in the remaining books in English imported bound or in sheets, these three classes comprising the book production of the United States in 1905. The first and second classes are almost all copyright books. This table, like the former, scarcely claims to be exactly correct, as it is impossible always to trace the history of a work, from its author to its final publication. The table shows 5719 books by American authors against 5978 of 1904; 1426 books by English or other foreign authors (made here) against 1288 of 1904, and 967 books or sheets imported, against 1025 of 1904. The reprints were, as usual, the largest in Fiction, amounting to 314, far less, however, than in several years previous, when almost double that number of English or other foreign novels were reprinted. The most evident fact demonstrated by this table is the great number of books by American authors published in 1905 in all classes of literature.

ENGLISH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1905.

The total number of books reported by the London Publishers' Circular during 1905 is almost the same as in 1904—only four score fewer. "The number of theological books," according to our English contemporary, "in spite of a fall of thirty in November, shows an increase on the year, due more to Francis of Assisi, Thomas à Kempis, and other devotional authors, than to Torrey and Alexander or Church and Education. The number of educational works is a hundred down, so is that of political and commercial books and of reprinted novels. The issue of new novels is almost to a unit the same as last year (1731—1733). The number of law books reported is practically unchanged, so is that of books on the arts and sciences, and that of biographical and historical works. In belles-lettres [the Publishers' Circular's] previous table showed a falling off of nearly a hundred, but this table shows an increase of one hundred and sixty-one. A slight increase is shown in books on journeyings and geography, poetry books and dramatic works, year books and serials, medical and surgical works. But for Africa and for the tariff question political books would be few indeed."

The analytical table prepared by The Publishers' Circular makes the following showing by classes:

BOOK PRODUCTION IN FRANCE, 1905.

The number of books published in France during 1905, as recorded by the Bibliographie de la France was 12,416, or 277 more than in 1904. The number of musical publications recorded in 1905 was 6197, as against 6429 in 1904, and the number of engravings, lithographs and photographs recorded in 1905 was 738, or 189 less than in 1904. As pointed out last year, in order to determine the exact number of books as distinguished from pamphlets, theses, leaflets and similar minor publications it would be safe to deduct between 2000 and 3000 titles. Last year the difference between the records of the Bibliographie de la France, the official booktrade journal which records all printed matter without regard to its merits as literature, and those of the Bureau of the Ministry of the Interior, which takes cognizance of only the more stable element in French booktrade production, amounted to exactly 2858 titles.

The current work of the Copyright Office is now kept as nearly up to date as is possible in an office where the daily business is so fluctuating. INDEX AND CATALOGUE.

The titles for all classes are indexed to December 30, 1905. The entries are indexed on cards by names of proprietors and titles. The total catalogue cards for the calendar year 1905 number 186,413, and these are added to the general alphabetical index, now containing about 1,278,404 cards.

Of the cards added to the general index of copyright entries during the year 7090 were for books and were supplied by the Catalogue Division of the Library of Congress. The great and steady growth of this card index is shown at a glance by a comparison of the number of cards added during the last five years: 1901—122,007; 1902—146,317; 1903—163,226; 1904—174,164; 1905—186,413. The total number of cards in the index is now considerably over one million, and at the present rate of increase every five years or so a million additional cards will be added.

"CATALOGUE OF TITLE ENTRIES."

Four quarterly volumes of 13 numbers each were published, containing 5421 pages of octavo print.

The volumes of the Catalogue of Title Entries now printed are as follows: July 1, 1891,

FEES AND SALARIES.

The earned fees paid into the Treasury for the year ($78,518) exceeded the amount expended for salaries, which was $74,600.37. The additional expenditures during the year for stationery and other supplies cannot at this date be obtained from the chief clerk of the library, but for the six months of the year they amounted to but $309.63, and the year's contingent expenditures, therefore, should be under $1000; the yearly average for the last five years has been $954.29.

Fees earned		564,774.00

Excess of fees over expenditure for service for 8 years, 6 months		$99,935.39

The appropriations for 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, and the first half of the fiscal year 1906 include the sum of $25,740 to be used in bringing up the arrears of work prior to July 1, 1897, which amount should therefore be deducted from the total sum for appropriations for service as not properly a charge upon the current work of the office, leaving the excess of fees earned over appropriations used for service $125,675.39 for the eight and one-half years.

The copyright fees are not, however, the most valuable assets of the office. During the year the articles deposited and credited numbered 213,498 articles. This large deposit of books, periodicals, maps, music, engravings, photographs, etc., includes many articles of considerable value which the Library of Congress would otherwise require to purchase, and these articles therefore represent an annual acquisition of property to the value of many thousands of dollars.

The deposited articles for the last five calendar years were as follows: 1901, 161,980; 1902, 173,234; 1903, 180,527; 1904, 192,528; 1905, 213,498; total, 921,767.

Of these articles one copy is sent for the use of the public to the Reading Room, the Law Library, the Division of Maps, the Prints Division, or the Music Division, while the other is filed in the Copyright Office. This latter collection now contains 1,508,707 publications received under the operation of the copyright laws from July 10, 1870, to December 30, 1905, including 177,939 books, 287,997 pamphlets and leaflets, 13,449 dramas, 347,395 musical compositions, 32,895 maps and charts, 803 atlases, 54,448 chromos and lithographs, 184,487 photographs and stereograms, and 113,091 engravings.

The total number of registrations made in the Copyright Office from July 10, 1870, (the date of the first registration,) to December 30, 1905, thirty-five and a half years, is 1,686,589, while the total applied fees for these entries amount to $1,216,786.81. Of this amount $652,012.81 was reported for copyright fees for the twenty-seven years from July 10, 1870, to June 30, 1897, and $564,774 for the applied fees for the last eight and one-half years from July 1, 1897, to December 30, 1905.

COURT ANNULS MRS. BLODGETT'S CONTRACT WITH MERRILL & BAKER CO.

JUSTICE SCOTT, of the New York Supreme Court, on January 22 decided that Mrs. Abby B. Blodgett, who died in July, 1904, was mentally incompetent when she signed a contract with a representative of the firm of Merrill & Baker Company to pay $78,000 for Shakespeare's works in thirty-nine volumes. William Tilden Blodgett, as executor of Mrs. Blodgett's will, sued to have the contract set aside and the notes given by her in payment for the books declared void.

Mrs. Blodgett was the widow of a wealthy merchant, and had been adjudged incompetent prior to his death. She had made contracts when seventy-five years old with various publishers for subscription books to cost $283,000 altogether. Suits were brought to set aside these contracts. It is thought that the decision of Justice Scott in the suit brought against the Merrill & Baker Company will apply to them all, involving contracts for well over $200,000.

W. D. HOWELLS ON THE COMMERCIALIZATION OF LITERATURE.

In the "Easy Chair" of the February Harper's, Mr. Howells takes up the discussion of the commercialization of literature. "Literature is not commercialized, even in the greedy souls of its authors," he says. "It cannot be commercialized, unless it is made to sell, with an eye single to its sale. As for the publisher's or the bookseller's methods, they are not yet enough commercialized, they are not yet truly business methods. In most other manufactures a well-known brand brings a better price than a brand ill known or unknown. But in the booktrade is it not so. A book by an author of established repute and unquestioned merit sells for no more than a book by an author of no literary excellence, or of no attested worth. The new author, the trashy author, sells for the same price as the author whose name is a measurable warrant of worth. Apparently the size, shape, and quality of the material put into a book fix its value. There is no other standard known to the trade; and therefore it seems that its methods are not businesslike. The publishing, the selling, of books need to be commercialized at a vital point. At present it is ridiculously naïve. It still proceeds upon the theory that 'A book's a book, although there's nothing in't.'

"If a dealer in dry-goods were to put upon his counter a 'beautiful line of alpacas,' say, of which he knew nothing as to material or texture, or of which he knew that both were bad, and offered them at the same rate as alpacas of recognized superiority, what would be thought of his wisdom, his morality? If a dealer in wet-goods, (as they are sometimes called,) were to invite his customers to buy a raw or acrid vintage at the same cost as 'a fine old crusty port' or a delicately tempered champagne of exquisite bouquet, because it was put up in the same kind of bottle, how long could he hope to keep the custom even of the newest millionaire who was trying to educate his palate? Yet upon precisely this principle the bookseller would indiscriminately offer his wares to the millionaire who was trying to form the library of a gentleman."

PRESIDENT ORDERS PRINTING REFORMS.

President Roosevelt on January 21 issued an order based on the recommendations of the Keep Commission, which investigated the Government Printing Office, directing that there shall be appointed by the head of each of the executive departments an advisory committee to see that unnecessary matter is excluded from publication; to prevent duplication of printing by different bureaus; to prevent the printing of the maximum edition allowed by law, when a smaller edition will suffice; in general to supervise the printing for the department with a view to economy.

The President also directs greater brevity of annual reports. He announces that he will appoint a general committee on bookmaking, advisory to all departments, to consist of the Librarian of Congress as chairman, the Public Printer, a representative of the department doing the largest amount of printing, and two printers not in the public service, of large experience in making books, who are to serve without compensation other than their travelling expenses. This committee is to promote economy, utility, beauty, durability and uniformity of Government publications.

COLONIAL ADMINISTRATION IN THE FAR EAST.

Small, Maynard & Co. have in preparation a work of unusual importance on a subject which has not been heretofore adequately treated in English which they will bring out under the title "A Report on Colonial Administration in the Far East." The "Report" has been prepared by Alleyne Ireland, Colonial Commissioner of the University of Chicago, and author of "Tropical Colonization," "The Far Eastern Tropics," etc., who, for the past fifteen years, has devoted himself to the study of comparative colonization. Before setting out on his three-years' visit to the Far East, of which this "Report" is the result, Mr. Ireland was assured of the active co-operation of the British government and was supplied with letters of commendation to the heads of government in each of the British Territories included in his itinerary; this courtesy was also extended to him by the Colonial Ministers of France and Holland, and by our government, in respect to their various dependencies visited by him. Through these fortunate circumstances Mr. Ireland was afforded the most ample opportunities of observation, and was supplied by the different Colonial governments with a vast quantity of official documents, disclosing every detail of administration during an extended period of years.

In preparing this "Report" Mr. Ireland has had two main objects in view—to provide students of political science with a work in the English language on the subject of comparative colonization, and to supply the need, which is constantly becoming more urgent, of a comprehensive work of reference in relation to the control and development of tropical dependencies.

Perhaps the chief value of this "Report" to students of political science will lie in this, that it will exhibit side by side the various methods which have been adopted by different nations for the solution of all the more important problems which arise in regard to the administration of tropical dependencies. The account of these methods will be accompanied by an analysis of the results which have been achieved, showing the comparative efficiency and cost of each department of the government under the British, American, French and Dutch systems, in Burma, British North Borneo, Sarawak, Hong Kong, the Straits Settlements, the Federated Malay States, Tonkin, Annam, Cochin China, Cambodia, Laos, Java and the Philippine Islands.

The list of subscribers already include the principal government departments of the United States and Great Britain, the governments of the colonies treated by the author, the leading libraries and newspapers in this country and abroad and a number of prominent individuals. It is anticipated that the work will be completed in ten large volumes, but possibly it may extend to twelve, that being the limit positively guaranteed by the publishers.

UPHAM WINS THE BOOKSTORE SUIT.

JUDGE GASKILL, of the Superior Court, in Boston, on the 18th inst., dismissed the suit brought by the Old Corner Book Store, Inc., against Henry M. Upham, formerly of Damrell & Upham and now of the H. M. Upham Company, in which an injunction was sought to restrain the defendants from alleged interference with the plaintiff's business, good will, customers and employees.

By Upham's sale of his interest in the old firm of Damrell & Upham, and the good will, to his partner, George A. Moore, in 1902, for $35,000, and the subsequent succession of the Old Corner Book Store to the business and property of that firm, it was claimed by the plaintiff that Upham became legally bound not to enter business again in competition with the good will of the old firm, which he had sold.

Upham claimed a legal right to re-engage in business, not having made any agreement not to do so.

OBITUARY NOTES.

FREDERICK S. STEDMAN, a son of Edmund Clarence Stedman, and one of the best known authorities on dogs in this country, died suddenly on January 22 at Pittsburg, Pa., where he was making arrangements for a bench show. Mr. Stedman was born in New York City in 1856, and for more than twenty years was in the banking business here. In 1888 he removed to Pittsburg, where he founded the Colonial Printing and Lithographing Company.

ROBERT NEILSON STEPHENS, author of "An Enemy to the King," "Captain Ravenshaw," and other successful novels, died on January 20, at Bournemouth, Eng., where he had gone on account of ill health. Mr. Stephens was born July 22, 1867, in New Bloomfield, Pa. When quite a boy his father died and he went to work in a bookstore in Huntington. Later he obtained a position as stenographer in the offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, from which he drifted into the Philadelphia Press as reporter. In 1893 he became general agent for a firm of theatrical managers, for whom he wrote a number of cheap plays, among them "On the Bowery," in which Steve Brodie played the hero. In 1896 his play "An Enemy to the King" was produced in New York by E. H. Sothern. At the suggestion of Mr. L. C. Page Stephens in the following year re-wrote the play as a novel. The success of the book was such as to encourage him in writing "The Continental Dragoon," "The Road to Paris," "A Gentleman Player," "Philip Winwood," "Captain Ravenshaw," "The Mystery of Murray Davenport," and "The Bright Face of Danger." Most of this work was done in spite of ill health and pain, through all of which Stephens preserved a sunny disposition and charm of manner that endeared him to a large circle of friends.

GEORGE JACOB HOLYOAKE died at Brighton, England, on January 22, in his eighty-ninth year, having been born in Birmingham, April 13, 1817. He was the founder of Secularism, and the historian of the British co-operative movement, his first book being the "History of the Rochdale Pioneers," published in 1857, followed in 1875 by the "History of Co-operation in England," and in 1891 by "The Co-operative Movement of To-day." Among his numerous other works are "Sixty Years of an Agitator's Life," (1892;) "Public Speaking and Debate," (1894;) "Nature and Origin of Secularism," (1896,) and "Bygones Worth Remembering," (1905.) For twenty years, ending with 1866, he edited The Reasoner, published in London. Mr. Holyoake founded a community at New Harmony, Indiana, as a socialistic experiment, in 1880. He was active in securing the repeal of stamped paper, the so-called "tax upon knowledge." For his offenses in publishing unstamped papers the fines had accumulated to nearly $3,000,000, which sum he asked Gladstone, who was Chancellor of the Exchequer, in 1854, to take in weekly instalments. On his initiative Lord Clarendon published a series of Blue Books on the condition of settlers in foreign countries, and he visited the United States and Canada twice to induce the governments of both countries to publish similar guide books. Notwithstanding severe pain which afflicted him during the last months of his life, his vigor as a writer remained unimpaired until his closing hours. The London Star, apropos of the approaching general election, published a letter from Mr. Holyoake entitled "One Day of Freedom," written on January 10, as terse and forceful as anything he ever wrote. Conscious that his end was near he bade good-bye to a friend in New York in a note of December 14: "When Herbert Spencer mentioned to me two years ago that I ought to condole with him on the perils of longevity, I had never heard of them. Since then they have come to me. The continuity of pain renders the length of my days very uncertain, and before it is too late I send you my affectionate acknowledgments of your personal kindness to me, and what is of not less moment to an author, the generous solicitude you have taken in my reputation in America."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

M. A. P. in America is the title of a new "magazine of personalities," edited by Edwin Wildman, to be published next month from 41 Union Square, New York. The first issue will contain an article on "A School of Journalism," by James Creelman, the famous journalist, who arraigns vulgarism in journalism and points the way to higher standards; "The Other Side of H. H. Rogers," the Standard Oil millionaire, presenting a new phase of his character and activities; interviews, by the editor, with the Hon. Korekyio Takahashi, the man who raised $500,000,000 for Japan; with Simeon Ford and with George H. Daniels; a character analysis and pen portrait of Joseph Pulitzer by Cleveland Moffat, etc. The magazine will be illustrated with portraits and original sketches.

LINDSAY SWIFT, of the Boston Public Library, in an article entitled "Atrocities of Color Supplements," contributed to The Printing Art for February, administers a deserved rebuke to the hideous color supplements furnished every week by the daily newspapers. Mr. Swift meets the banal reply of the newspaper publishers to criticism of their methods, namely, that "the public will and therefore must have what it wants," with this very proper answer: "I am not so sure about that. The public visits beautiful museums and libraries and seems to enjoy them; it goes to churches where good music may be heard; it will support a decent play and condemn a nasty one. But it can be debauched and can have its dawning sensibilities for art or anything else that it worth while blighted; and there is no debauchery or blight, outside the domain of obvious immorality, more deadening to the public than this continually thrusting everything that is sordid, vulgar, and belittling before its uncultured but curious eyes."

FREDERICK WARNE & CO. have now ready in their Newnes' Art Library "The Later Works of Titian," with an introduction by Henry Miles, and 64 reproductions of the works of Titian in half-tone; also, "The Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood," with 56 full-page reproductions of the works of Ford Madox Brown, William Holman Hunt, D. G. Rossetti, Millais and the Italian Pre-Raphaelite painters.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly "The Dawn of a To-morrow," the story, by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, that aroused much comment and enthusiasm during its serial publication in Scribner's Magazine. It will be brought out in attractive form with eight illustrations in color by F. C. Yohn. They will publish late next month a new book by Frances Powell, entitled "The Prisoner of Orinth Farm."

ALEXANDER A. MCCORMICK, well known to the trade through his former connections with A. C. McClurg & Co., has resigned as editor and publisher of the Chicago Evening Post, to become president, editor and publisher of the Star League, of Indiana, comprising the Indianapolis Star, the Terre Haute Star and the Muncie Star, in which he has secured a large interest. Mr. McCormick has removed to Indianapolis to take personal control of the properties.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has undertaken the publication, in this country of Skeffington's Sermon Library, a series designed to furnish standard volumes of discourses, heretofore published, at specially low prices. Two volumes are now ready—volume I., "The Seed and the Soil," by Rev. J. B. C. Murphy, and volume II., "Twenty-three Short Sermons for Children" and "Bought with a Price," nine sermons for Lent and Easter, bound in one, by H. J. Wilmot Buxton.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in preparation "The False Gods," by George Horace Lorimer; "The Castle of Lies," by Arthur Henry Veney, author of "The Clock and the Key;" "In the Shadow," by Henry C. Rowland; "How to be Beautiful," by Clara E. Laughlin; and "The Warblers," a new book by Frank H. Chapman, the well-known ornithologist and author of "Bird Studies with a Camera" and "Bird Life."

HARPER & BROTHERS will shortly add five new volumes to their Young People Series. These are Lewis Carroll's "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," "Hunting of the Snark" and "Through the Looking Glass," also, Lucy C. Lillie's "Phil and the Baby," and "The False Witness." The series takes its name from the fact that many of the stories first appeared in Harper's Young People. Additions have been made from time to time, until now some sixty stories are included in the list.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have in press the first volume of a series to be called American Public Problems, which is to be published under the general editorial direction of Ralph Curtis Ringwalt, of the New York Bar, author of "Modern American Authority." The first volume, by Prescott F. Hall, deals with "Immigration and Its Effect Upon the United States." They will also issue very shortly "Rahab," a poetic drama by Richard Burton, of which the subject is "the woman of Jericho."

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co. have secured the American rights of Laura Hain Friswell's "In the Sixties and Seventies," a book of reminiscences written in an easy, chatty style, not unmixed with humor, giving an account of the sayings and doings of the famous Englishmen who visited the fireside of Hain Friswell, editor and author. Among his intimate friends were Dickens, Cruikshank, Swinburne, Sir Henry Irving, Tennyson, Beaconsfield, Gladstone, Du Maurier, Charles Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Professor Morley, and Walter Besant.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. sold out before publication day their first large edition of 25,000 copies of Ellen Glasgow's new story, "The Wheel of Life," and a second edition of 10,000 copies is already on the presses. On March 3 they will issue "Under the Arch," a novel by Lady Henry Somerset, dealing with modern London; "Curayl," by Una L. Silberrad, the story of a woman sold into a loveless marriage by her spendthrift father; and "The Jungle," a novel of conditions in the Chicago stockyards, by Upton Sinclair, said to be Zolaesque in its realism.

THE FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING COMPANY have issued a very handsome book in "Houseboats and Houseboating," by Albert Bradlee Hunt. Its purpose is threefold: To make known the opportunities American waters afford for enjoyment of the houseboating life; to present in adequate measure the development which houseboating has attained in this country; to set forth the qualities of the houseboat so that people may be prompted to prove its delights for themselves. The work is profusely illustrated and gives many plans and figurings for boatbuilding.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD will publish in March a volume entitled "The Twentieth Century Christ," by Paul Karishka, the pseudonym of a well-known jurist. The book is "a history of the Christ idea as it has manifested itself from age to age and among races differing widely in the direction and degree of development." They will publish at the same time a New England story by Mrs. Charles Clark Munn, entitled "The Girl from Tim's Place;" Dwight Tilton's "The Golden Greyhound;" also, "Under Togo for Japan," the sixth of Edward Stratemeyer's Soldiers of Fortune series.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will bring out to mark the bi-centennial of the birth of Benjamin Franklin a notable limited edition of Franklin's "Autobiography," to be printed under the direction of Bruce Rogers. In style and finish of manufacture the volume will equal Cavendish's "The Life of Cardinal Wolsey," recently issued by the same house. It will be a fitting memorial of the great American who was first as journalist, printer and publisher, as American author, humorist and philanthropist, as inventor, scientist and philosopher, as politician, statesman and diplomatist. A number of famous portraits of Franklin will be given in photogravure.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY, 239 Fifth Avenue, New York City, announce for early spring publication "The Throwback," a novel of Western life, by Alfred Henry Lewis, now appearing as a serial in The Outing Magazine; "Side Show Studies," by Francis Metcalfe, a humorous work dealing with circus life, and amusingly illustrated by Oliver Herford; "The Praying Skipper," and other stories, by Ralph D. Paine, a collection of the notable magazine work done by him recently; "The Pass," by Stewart Edward White, following the line of the author's successful books, "The Forest" and "The Mountains;" also, "The Lucky Piece," a novel by Albert Bigelow Paine, the scene of which is laid mainly in the Adirondacks.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish this week the first novel written by Henryk Sienkiewicz since 1900, entitled "On the Field of Glory," translated by Jeremiah Curtin. The scenes are laid in Poland just before the Turkish invasion of 1682-1683, and the book marks striking progress in the art of the author of "Quo Vadis." He has recently been awarded the Nobel literary prize, which amounts to $40,000. Next month this house will have ready "Maid of Athens," a new novel by Lafayette McLaws, author of "When the Land Was Young," a romance dealing with Lord Byron's life; and "Hearts and Creeds," a new romance of Quebec, by Anna Chapin Ray, in which the marriage of a Catholic man and a Protestant woman is largely responsible for the plot.

B. D. Berry & Company, 378 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, have brought out a series of Berry's Writing Books, of which four numbers are now ready. Number 1 is entitled "The Jingle Book," is a lead pencil book intended for the child's first efforts in writing, the child's interest being held by colored headings. The rhymes are by Carolyn Wells, and the illustrations by Fanny Y. Cory, Ethel Franklin Betts and others. Number 2 is "The Mother Goose Books," in which the writing exercises are interleaved with full-page illustrations of "Mother Goose" by Lucy Fitch Perkins. Numbers 3 and 4 are "The Bird and Beast Book" and "The Flower Book," intended for intermediate work. Three other numbers are announced. The retail price of the books is eight cents for each number.

The J. B. Lippincott Company have just ready E. F. Benson's latest novel, "The Angel of Pain," the story of a great sacrifice for love; "Memoirs of Charles Henry Cramp," the famous ship builder, by Augustus C. Buell, a wonderful record of a wonderful man who lived in wonderful times; also, the fourth volume of Dr. George H. Fox's "Photographic Atlas of the Diseases of the Skin." They announce for early spring publication "The Nature and Origin of Living Matter," an important work by H. Charlton Bastian; volume 2 of W. Worby Beaumont's comprehensive work, "Motor Vehicles and Motors, their design, construction and working, by Steam, Oil, and Electricity;" also, a second edition of Ella Middleton Tybout's novel, "Wife of the Secretary of State," the sales of which have been increasing steadily since its publication.

Fleming H. Revell Company are issuing a biography of John Witherspoon, written by his grandson, David Walker Woods, who divides his grandfather's life into four periods, giving full accounts of the struggle for popular rights in the Church of Scotland, the administration of Princeton College as its president, the organization of the American Presbyterian Church, as a signer of the Declaration of Independence and as an active man in the conduct of the Revolution. The author has had access to many rare documents which were put at his disposal by the late Matthew S. Quay and other librarians. They also have in press a work entitled "Method in Soul Winning in Home and Foreign Fields," by Dr. Henry C. Mabie, of the American Baptist Missionary Union, who tells of his experiences gained in his missionary work all round the globe.

The Macmillan Company's spring announcements include a number of important and interesting forthcoming books, of which the following are a few of the more noteworthy: The first volume of Dr. Henry C. Lea's "History of the Inquisition of Spain;" "Napoleon and His Times," the new volume in the Cambridge Modern History; "The Garden, You and I," by Mabel Osgood Wright; "The Life of Animals," by Ernest Ingersoll; "Tarry at Home Travels," by Edward Everett Hale; Tennyson's "In Memoriam," with the author's notes; "Nero," by Stephen Phillips; "The Development of Shakespeare as a Dramatist," by Professor George P. Baker; the first volume of "The Cyclopedia of American Agriculture," edited by Professor L. H. Bailey; "The Bitter Cry of the Children," by John Spargo; "A Living Wage," by the Rev. John A. Ryan; "Mars and Its Canals," by Percival Lowell; "The Manufacture of Wine," by Paul Pacottet, translated and enlarged by Professor F. T. Bioletti; "Wireless Telegraphy and Telephony," by Professor Domenico Mazzotto; and "India," by Flora Annie Steel, author of "On the Face of the Waters." They will publish on February 8 Eden Phillpotts's new novel, "The Portreeve," which was originally announced for the 18th inst. The unfamiliar word that serves as the title, by the way, signifies the chief magistrate of a port or maritime town.

Laird & Lee have made a specialty for years of accurately compiled and attractively gotten up books of information on all kinds of practical topics. Recently they have brought out Laird & Lee's Great Standard Series of Dictionaries for libraries, homes, offices, universities, colleges, high schools and common schools of every grade. Each volume contains a key to pronunciation, and the diacritical markings are simple and based on standard authorities. The type is good and the illustrations are many. To this series belong "Webster's New Standard Dictionary," library edition, with biblical, musical and classical names, legal terms, mythological terms and words of Latin, Greek, Persian, Hindu and Egyptian origin; "Webster's New Standard High School and Collegiate Dictionary," and a students' common school edition of the same; "Webster's Modern Dictionary," of which there are an intermediate school edition and an elementary school edition; and a "Standard Webster Pocket Dictionary," which is quite distinct from the "Webster Pocket Dictionary," published fourteen years ago, and has many excellent maps and other new features. Besides the house has very useful dictionaries of the Spanish, German and French languages, gotten up in stiff silk covers or in morocco. The "New Standard Dictionary" was awarded the gold medal and diploma by Superior Jury at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904 at St. Louis, and was also unanimously adopted by the Chicago Board of Education for use in the public schools. The dictionaries are all that they can be made, and they are sold at very reasonable prices.

Notwithstanding the widely-circulated announcements concerning C. G. Schillings'

Flashlights in the Jungle

(the pirated, incomplete version of which is called "With Flashlight and Rifle")

we still find a few of our friends without the interesting facts which preceded the publication of this remarkable work. Briefly—

1. Without any authorization whatsoever the Harper's brought out an edition which was most inadequate, both in text and illustration, containing only part of the text and about a third of the pictures photographed from the half-tones in a copy of the German edition.

2. When we, who had paid a high price for the complete authorized American edition, protested, they offered to sell their "pirated" edition to us—if we would take over their "royalty agreement" with the author.

3. This chivalrous protection of the author's interest was the more noticeable since we learned by cable that they did not even write to him offering royalty until after our protest, and a week after their pirated version appeared he had received no communication whatever from them.

4. Later, in the author's own words: "I have received an offer from Harper's 'the usual 10% royalty.' Naturally I refused . . . the bad pictures in their edition damage my reputation very much."

We have the only authorized and complete edition of this greatest photographic achievement the world has ever seen. It contains several new pictures besides all those which appeared in Germany. The text has been thoroughly revised, with the aid of three English scientists.

We hope you will not let the above necessary personalities blind you to the fact that this book is worthy of attention for its own sake.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT says, for instance:

"Mr. Schillings is a great field naturalist, a trained scientific observer, as well as a mighty hunter; and no mere hunter can ever do work even remotely approaching in value that which he has done. . . . The best recent book on the wilderness."

300 stunning photographs of African wild animals. Uniform with "The Opening of Tibet." Net, $3.80 (postage 38c.).

The number of copies printed, of which only a portion now remains unsold, is limited to 1,250, of which 250 are for America. All copies will be numbered, and Venus and Adonis, the first volume of each set, is signed by Mr. Lee.

JOHNSON'S LIVES OF THE POETS

Edited by the late George Birkbeck Hill, with a brief Memoir of Dr. Hill by his nephew, Harold Spencer Scott, and a full Index. In three volumes, medium 8vo; half roan $10.50.

These volumes complete the cycle of works connected with the writings of Dr. Johnson, which was promised by Dr. Birkbeck Hill in the Preface to his edition of Boswell's Life. He there rightly described the editing of Lives of the Poets as a still more arduous task even than that of Boswell's great book; but he worked at it unflinchingly to the very end of his life, and left it finished in its main outlines, awaiting only the general supervision and final touches which a posthumous work must always require. All lovers of Johnson's memory owe a deep debt of gratitude to Mr. H. Spencer Scott, Dr. Birkbeck Hill's nephew, who, with truly filial affection, undertook the heavy task of revising the whole mass of references, and of reading, not once or twice only, the entire proofs of the book at every stage.

THE PLAYS AND POEMS OF ROBERT GREENE

Edited by Prof. Churton Collins, uniform with the Clarendon Press editions of Kyd (edited by Mr. Boas) and Lyly (edited by Mr. Bond). In two volumes, 8vo, cloth, $6.00.

This edition is the result of great labor. In the Life of Greene, the editor has incorporated much new information, collected by personal research in Norfolk and elsewhere.

For the Bookseller and Librarian

The Second (or Supplementary Volume) of the American Catalog

1900-1905

The second volume of the new "American Catalog, 1900, '01, '02, '03, 04," is now ready for delivery.

The first volume, issued in June last, is a complete record in itself, being a dictionary-catalog of all books recorded between January 1, 1900, and January 1, 1905. In its one alphabet every book is entered at least three times (by author, title and subject), with information as to size, price, publisher, year of issue, etc. It forms the latest addition to the old series of the "American Catalogue," published in quarto form, while the newest volume is an octavo, which is generally conceded to be a much handier shape. We can reasonably affirm that every dealer needs such a permanent catalog in his business, while every library of importance should have this standard bibliographical work on its shelves, since its usefulness in the world of books is on a par with a time-table in the railroad world.

The second, or supplementary volume, contains the full title entries, with annotations, given in the "Weekly Record" of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during the five years 1900, '01, '02, '03, '04, cumulated into one alphabet for each year; that is, into five alphabets. This is planned to answer the demands of librarians, booksellers and others who wish this valuable material, in available shape, for classifying and describing and for permanent reference.

For the book dealer the second volume is a very useful record of book valuation. It gives in form for ready reference brief descriptive notices of the important books published during the period mentioned, describing concisely the contents of each work and explaining many titles which, in themselves, mean little or nothing or are misleading. For descriptive cataloging, a bibliographical work of this kind is almost priceless.

The two volumes are uniformly bound in half morocco. The price is $12.00 for both or $7.50 for either separately. The edition is limited, only 230 copies of the first volume and 110 of the second volume remaining unsold. We reserve the right to advance the price when the balance of either is reduced to 100 copies.

State Publications: Part III.

WESTERN STATES AND TERRITORIES:

Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Dakota Territory, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Indian Territory Alaska, Hawaii.

Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER

Embracing provisional bibliographies of the official publications of the above-named States and Territories, from their organization. While the difficulties of compiling a bibliography of this sort at the present time make absolute completeness impossible, every effort has been made to obtain accuracy to the extent covered, by means of the coöperation in most of the States of the State Librarians, State University librarians, or officials of State Historical Societies.

ALREADY PUBLISHED

PART I: NEW ENGLAND STATES.—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut.

PART II: NORTH CENTRAL STATES.—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin.

The complete work, exceeding 800 pages, will be furnished at $10.00. Subscriptions will be received only for the whole work.

☞ But 500 copies have been printed and there are no plates. Only 148 copies remain unsubscribed.

The attention of State Libraries, of the central public libraries, and of foreign libraries, is especially called to this bibliography, but it is also important to that larger number of libraries which cannot undertake to collect the State publications even of their own State and yet should be able to inform students and inquirers as to what is to be found in the publications of their own State and of other States. What New York and Massachusetts are doing in forestry, for instance, is of importance in all States and to foreign students of the subject.

A New Novel by Sienkiewicz

MESSRS. LITTLE, BROWN, & COMPANY announce that by special arrangement with Mr. Jeremiah Curtin, who has received from Sienkiewicz the exclusive right of translating all that author's works into English, they will to-day (January 27) publish a new historical romance of great power and interest, entitled

On the Field of Glory

By HENRYK SIENKIEWICZ

This important work is the only one written by this renowned author since the year 1900, when he completed "Knights of the Cross." It is likely to rank with his best historical novels, "With Fire and Sword" and "The Deluge." The scenes are laid in Poland, and the period is the reign of the famous King John Sobieski, just before the Turkish invasion in 1682 to 1683. Sienkiewicz has woven a wonderful romance of great brilliancy and strong character drawing, and in no book by the author of "Quo Vadis"—a story whose sale has not been equalled by any modern work of fiction—has he displayed his great genius more strikingly. In "On the Field of Glory" he tells a charming, tender, and passionate love story of remarkable intensity, and gives the reader acquaintance with characters not inferior in vigor and interest to those of the great trilogy. The complete work will be presented for the first time in this translation by Mr. Curtin, whose intimate acquaintance with all the Slav languages is famous, and whose mastery of Polish and remarkable power in interpreting Sienkiewicz have received world-wide recognition.
